

Amateur KD6SWA - I would like the FCC to keep the requirements for Amateur Licensing just as they are. I would like the code requirement to still be in place and the High frequency privileges to be what they are today. As with anything in life, you must work for things and earn them. If people want to come into the hobby and get a taste of it, that is what the "Codeless" Technician class is for. As you test and upgrade, then more privileges should come your way. Under no circumstances should it be any easier than it is right now.
